

Government support in retirement

Centrelink in plain English

Issued July 2010

What is the Age Pension?

The purpose of the Age Pension is to make sure you have enough income in retirement. It is a fortnightly payment made by the Australian Government to help you meet the cost of living if your retirement savings are below a certain level.

To be eligible for the Age Pension, you must have reached a certain age. If you satisfy the age criteria, your current level of wealth is then assessed to determine whether you can receive a payment. You are also assessed on whether:

- you are single or a member of a couple, and
- you own your own home.

Transitional rules

The Australian pension system is undergoing reform. To ensure that no pensioner is worse off under the new reform rules¹, two sets of payment rates are being used:

- the current rate, and
- transitional rate.

We can help you find out which rate applies to you.

If you are eligible for the Age Pension, you will receive a fortnightly payment up to the maximum pension.

Age Pension – maximum rates	Current rate (per fortnight)	Transition rate (per fortnight)
Single person	$701.10	$634.30
Couple (each)	$528.50	$512.30

When can you apply for the Age Pension?

The qualifying age depends on when you were born, as set out in the table below.

Date of birth	Women	Men
Before 1 Jan 1946	Eligible	65 years
1 Jan 1946 – 30 Jun 1947	64 years	65 years
1 Jul 1947 – 31 Dec 1948	64.5 years	65 years
1 Jan 1949 – 30 Jun 1952	65 years	65 years
1 Jul 1952 – 31 Dec 1953	65.5 years	65.5 years
1 Jan 1954 – 30 Jun 1955	66 years	66 years
1 Jul 1955 – 31 Dec 1956	66.5 years	66.5 years
On or after 1 Jan 1957	67 years	67 years

* The qualifying age for Department of Veterans' Affairs pensioners (men and women) may differ to those shown above.

How are you assessed?

Once you reach the qualifying age, your current wealth (your assets and your income) is measured to determine your eligibility. To receive a payment, you must meet both an asset and an income test. Both tests are applied to your circumstances, and the test that results in the lowest payment is used.

¹ The information in this document is based on the new rules.

The assets test

If the value of your assets is below the minimum level, you qualify for a full pension. If your assets are above the top level, you will not receive a payment. If the value of your assets falls between these two levels, you will receive a part pension.

Assets test	Homeowner		Non – homeowner
	Full pension	Pension cut-out	Full pension	Pension cut-out
Single	$181,750	$649,250	$313,250	$780,750
Couple	$258,000	$963,000	$389,500	$1,094,500

If you qualify for a part pension, the maximum rate of pension is reduced by $1.50 per fortnight for every $1,000 of assets over the minimum level.

Gifting assets

To prevent people from giving money and assets away to their family, friends or charities for the sole purpose of increasing their Centrelink benefits, special gifting rules apply. In one financial year, you can give away assets up to the value of $10,000 without affecting your Centrelink payment. You can only give away a total of $30,000 over a rolling five year period.

Any amounts that you gift above these limits are treated as an assessable asset and included in the assets test. Income that would have been earned from the asset would also be assessed under the deeming rules. The asset and income values calculated remain in force for five years.

The gifting rules do not apply if you are selling an asset to meet normal expenses such as home improvements or a holiday.

The income test

The income test works in a similar way to the assets test. Your income must fall below a certain level to receive a full pension, or between two levels to receive a part pension.

For every dollar that your income is above the full pension level, your Age Pension will be reduced by 50 cents as a single, or 25 cents as a member of a couple. If you are a member of a couple, your income is combined with your partner's to determine your eligibility. Your income under the income test is not measured simply on the amount of income you receive. Special rules apply.

Income test		Full pension	Pension cut-out
Single	F	$146.00	$1,528.00
	A	$3,796.00	$40,253.20
Couple (combined)	F	$256.00	$2,370.00
	A	$6,656.00	$61,620.00

F – per fortnight A – per annum

What are deeming rates?

To help Centrelink gain a complete picture of your income from all sources, all of your financial investments are assessed under a single set of rules. This is known as deeming. Rather than use the actual income you receive, Centrelink uses an assumed rate of income and applies this to your investments.

Centrelink status	Treatment
Single person	First $43,200 is deemed to earn 3% income pa. The remaining balance is deemed to earn 4.5% income pa.
Pensioner couple	First $72,000 is deemed to earn 3% income pa. The remaining balance is deemed to earn 4.5% income pa.

Special treatment of superannuation savings

To encourage you to save for your retirement, Centrelink treats your superannuation savings differently to your other financial assets. Until you reach Age Pension age, your superannuation savings are not counted when determining how much money you will receive from Centrelink.

An exemption may also be available to women who have reached Age Pension age, but are under 65 and are still working in some capacity.

Once you reach Age Pension age, the full value of your superannuation savings is counted under the assets test. If you have not used your superannuation savings to start a retirement income stream, your superannuation savings are also deemed under the income test.

If you have used your superannuation savings to start a retirement income stream, Centrelink uses a calculation based on your age and the value of your savings to work out how much of this income they will count under the income test.

What is the Work Bonus?

To encourage people eligible for the Age Pension to continue to work, the Government has introduced the Work Bonus. It applies to all pensioners who are over Age Pension age and being assessed under the new rules. The bonus allows concessional treatment of your employment income when you are being assessed under the income test for the Age Pension.

Putting it all together

Centrelink uses a set of tests, including the income test and the assets test, to assess your wealth and make sure that you receive the right amount of money from the government in the form of the Age Pension. Other rules, such as deeming rates and the Work Bonus, may impact your pension payments.

We can help you navigate the rules that Centrelink uses to calculate your financial situation, and structure a financial strategy that will provide the right amount of income to maintain your lifestyle into retirement.

Note: This document provides general information only. Before making any financial or investment decisions, we recommend you consult a financial planner to take into account your particular investment objectives, financial situation and individual needs. Genesys Wealth Advisers and its authorised representatives do not accept any liability for any errors or omissions of information supplied in this document.

Need more information?

Contact your Genesys wealth adviser to arrange a consultation.